The President Says:

With this term my work as active President of the College is ended. It has been a great adventure. To see an institution grow and develop in influence and in usefulness through a quarter of a century should bring satisfaction to everyone connected with it. To serve private enterprise for so long a period is not unusual. To be in a responsible position in public life so many years is not so common. Only one man ever served a Missouri institution of higher education longer, and of the nearly two hundred president of Teachers Colleges in the United States there are but four who were "on the roll" when I came here.

I shall still be active in College matters. I shall still be "around," I shall do as well as I can "such work as may be assigned by the President and the Board of Regents."

I hope to see more of the student body. Each of them will have an individuality that it is not possible for an over-all administrator to know. I hope to understand better the problems and desires of the faculty, which I will see from a different viewpoint. I hope to contribute at least a little to the College which I have served this long.

It has an enviable reputation because we—all of us—have dared to do some new things in education. We have almost "lived dangerously." But we have in many respects blazed the way.

New opportunities are before us. New obligations are upon us. The new President will meet them. He will have my full support.

It is with a grateful heart that I express my appreciation to all who have helped to make this College what it is,—and who have given me such generous support and thoughtful consideration.

UEL W. LAMKIN.

Art Department Head Elected to Office in State Teachers Association

Several From College Go to St. Louis to Attend Annual Meeting.

Miss Olive S. DeLuce—and the Northwest Missouri State Teachers College, to whose faculty she belongs—received an honor when the Missouri State Teachers Association, at its annual meeting in St. Louis, November 7-9, named Miss DeLuce as its third vice-president.

Several members of the faculty attended the St. Louis meeting. Miss Marjory Elliott, Dr. M. C. Cunningham, and Mr. W. W. Cook went as delegates from the College community association. President Lamkin went as a delegate from Nodaway county. Dean J. W. Jones and Mr. Donald Valk also attended.

Mr. Cunningham served as secretary of the Department of Supervision in the association. Mr. Valk was chairman of the industrial arts section.

Miss DeLuce is experienced. Miss DeLuce, head of the Fine Arts department of the College, who was elected to the office of third vice-president, is not new in teachers' association work. She has served as chairman of the art section of the association, has been a member of the house of delegates, and has been on various committees. Last year she was on the committee on necrology. She is beginning her third year as treasurer of the Northwest Missouri Teachers Association.

Always active in school work in the state, Miss DeLuce organized and was chairman of the art work in the state. She was chairman of the art committee for the high school course of study for art.

Not only in the state, but in the nation, is the newly elected third vice-president known. At present she is one of the directors of the department of art in the National Education Association, and she has served one term as president. She has appeared on the programs in that association, in the Western Arts Association, and the Eastern Arts Association. She served as program chairman for the Colorado meeting of the Western Arts Association.

Both Teacher and Artist. Miss DeLuce is both a teacher of art and an artist. She took her degree from Teachers College, Columbia University, New York. She studied with the Art Student's League in New York City, and with E. W. Dow in this country. She studied in France with Andre L'Hote. She has painted in France and in the United States, particularly in Maine, Massachusetts, and

Samuel Spivens to Address Children

Dorothy Waldo Phillips Is Speaking Today Before Five Groups.

Samuel Spivens is here today to help Mrs. Dorothy Waldo Phillips, a specialist in child psychology, talk to the children of Maryville. Samuel Spivens is a puppet who, like Charley McCarthy, is always getting into trouble. When he does, he appeals to the children, as for instance when he says to them, "Won't you please help me to cure my bad habits?"

DOROTHY WALDO PHILLIPS

Mrs. Phillips spoke last night at the Horace Mann auditorium to the parents of school children. She is speaking today to the College assembly in the auditorium of the Administration building.

The program for the day includes an appearance before the grade children of the Horace Mann Laboratory school at 11:00 o'clock, and one before the children of the Eugene Field school at 1:30, at the Eugene Field school. Samuel Spivens will assist.

At 2:15 o'clock she will appear before an assembly of Maryville high school students, and at 3 o'clock she will return to the Horace Mann to address the high school students there.

Specializing in the fields of youth guidance and parent education, Mrs. Phillips broadcasts regularly over Columbia WCAU, Philadelphia, a radio program entitled "The Friend of Youth." A member of the faculty of Mary Lyon junior college Swarthmore, Mrs. Phillips also has been for the past thirteen years director of activities and organizer of the junior club of Skypot, Pa.

Born in England and naturalized in the United States, Mrs. Phillips has traveled extensively in Europe, China, Japan and the Philippines. She was educated in English schools and the college of Neuchatel, Switzerland.

The youth specialist's appearance here in Maryville is being sponsored by several groups including the American Association of University Women, the Lions club, the STC, Maryville high school and the early childhood education department of the Horace Mann school.

Meredee Myers and Dorothy Harshaw spent the week-end of November 2-4 in St. Joseph with Esther Gasper and Lois Gordon.

Lilybell Bucker spent the week-end of November 9-11 with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Bucker of Elmo, Missouri.

Phyllis Moore spent the week-end of November 10-12 in Pickerington.

Joyce Heck was a week-end visitor at Mount City, November 10-11.

Copies of S. A. Student Are Received at College

Two copies of the S. A. Student, a newspaper printed in Cape Town, South Africa, were received Friday, November 9, at the Northwest Missouri office. The S. A. Student is the official organ of the National Union of South African Schools, referred to as "Nusas."

Part of the articles in the paper are written in English and part in Dutch. Some of the most important articles are written twice, once in English and once in Dutch.

According to the more recent issue received, the "Nusas" decided at its July council meeting that the Fort Hare University should be included in the union. This move, according to the S. A. Student, means that Nusas has decided for democracy.

It was the first time since the founding of Nusas twenty-one years ago, that a Non-European University has been allowed to enter the union. Fort Hare is a South African Native College. All other universities belonging to the union are European ones. That is to say, their students are of European descent.

These copies of S. A. Student are the first to be received since before the war. They are being placed in the "Bearcats' Den" for students to see.

Everett W. Brown Begins Work as School Supervisor

Everett W. Brown, former student in Maryville, who has just received his discharge from military service, has been chosen as supervisor of schools for Northwest Missouri, according to word received from Roy Scantlin, state superintendent of schools. He began his work this week.

Mr. Brown, who takes the place left vacant by the death of J. W. Pierce, was graduated from the State Teachers College in Maryville in 1937 and received his Master's degree from the University of Missouri at Columbia in 1942. Previous to entering the service he had taught school for a number of years and at that time was superintendent of schools at Fortescue.

When a residence can be secured Mr. and Mrs. Brown and their two sons will move to Maryville—Nodaway County Tribune.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Drewes of Graham, Missouri, visited Thursday evening, November 8, in Residence Hall with their daughter, Faire, the occasion being her birthday.

For this meeting I, Mary Garrett, as president of our local Student Christian Association, and Marian Murphy, as an additional delegate, went to Washington University in St. Louis, November 2, 3, 4.

Graveside Services Are Held for Mr. J. W. Pierce

Graveside services were held for Mr. J. W. Pierce Sunday afternoon November 4, at 2 o'clock at the Miriam cemetery south of Maryville. Mr. Pierce died October 19. The services were delayed until the arrival of a son, Yeoman third class John W. Pierce, who has been stationed on the U. S. S. Zane in the Pacific.

Mr. Pierce, victim of a heart ailment, died in the Recreation Club in Maryville just as he was ready to make a pool shot. He had been under a physician's care, but had been taking care of his school duties. The 61-year old man was a Northwest Missouri state school supervisor. He participated in the district teachers' meeting held here at the College, October 11 and 12.

Mr. Pierce is a graduate of the College. His wife, Ruby Windsor Pierce, also a graduate of the College, died in June of this year.

Freshman Class Collects Material on Professions

The Freshman Orientation class has been making a special study of occupations and professions. Each student was told to choose from a list of occupations one which he was most interested in and had an aptitude for. He was then to make a special study of that particular occupation.

Information was gathered from books, magazines, and personal interviews with people who have been successful in their chosen fields of work. The students also attended, at the Horace Mann school, moving pictures on the choosing of a career.

With the aid of this preliminary study and survey, the concluding problem was to write a 1000-word theme discussing the nature of the work, advantages and disadvantages, personal qualities or characteristics needed, scholastic qualifications needed, and other important information concerning their chosen occupations.

The purpose of the study was to aid freshmen students in choosing their life work. The class is under the direction of Miss Martha Locke, dean of women, and Mr. A. H. Cooper, adviser to the freshmen.

Students Have Week-end With Friends in Iowa

Margery Burger and Mary Lou Cundy spent the week-end of November 9-11 at College Springs, Iowa, with Mrs. Bob Decker, the former Myrna Harland, a student of the College last year.

Other visitors to College Springs were Lois Beavers and LaVonne Cederlin, who spent the week-end with June Pollock.

Dorothy L. Shupe, a freshman in the College, began working at the Bakyr Store in Maryville, Saturday, November 10, 1945. She is continuing her college work.

Lilybell Bucker spent the week-end of November 9-11 with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Bucker of Elmo, Missouri.

Joyce Heck was a week-end visitor at Mount City, November 10-11.

See You in St. Louis!

By MARY GARRETT.

"I hope the two of you can come from Maryville—we want to provide all that information you really need. Best of luck. See you in St. Louis!"

Sincerely,
Dorothy Cochran
Co-chairman of Missouri Section—Student Christian Associations." That letter settled the matter—we would go!

From Missouri University, Drury College in Springfield, Park College, Tarkio College, Warrensburg, Central College, Washington University, and the College at Maryville, girls and boys, presidents of their campus organizations, came to St. Louis to meet as the Missouri Sectional Council which regulates the business of the organizations on campuses in Missouri and is a division of the Southwest Region, which includes the states of Missouri, Arkansas, Oklahoma and Texas.

For this meeting I, Mary Garrett, as president of our local Student Christian Association, and Marian Murphy, as an additional delegate, went to Washington University in St. Louis, November 2, 3, 4.

It was with a clearer understanding and determined desire to stimulate the Student Christian Association on this campus that I left the conference rooms at the close of the meeting Sunday noon. This organization cuts through all other organizations and bars no one. It should be the leading light on the campus since it works for everyone and not a chosen few. This is an organization in which one is not JUST a member but a vital cog in the world's wheel.

The Student Christian Association organization has been formed as a union of the Young Men's Christian Association and the Young Women's Christian Association on certain campuses such as ours.

Through our SCA organization, this college could contribute to the financing of hospitals, schools, and camps all over the world for those students which have kept the light of education from all but going out in the world that has tumbled down around them. In France, China, Belgium, the Netherlands, India, Burma and Ceylon, Hungary, Germany, Switzerland, and Yugoslavia came reports of the rising up out of the underground of the schools that have survived the war. These reports come from outstanding leaders in those countries which are known and respected by some of the students and advisers that attended this conference.

It is through an agency known as the World Student Service Fund that such help is given to those countries that need it.

There were discussions and talks on program materials, of membership, of arousing interest in SCA among the students, of budgets, of constitutions, of conferences to be held in the future, and other week-end.

With the closing of the conference we left with one entire afternoon to see St. Louis. Imagine my satisfaction when I returned to school and read on the Humanities bulletin board in front of Room 207, one of the pictures that I had seen the day before, an original Hans Holbein painting costing $85,000!

So ended my week-end in St. Louis with its sunshine and smoke, its feverish railroad station, its airplanes writing FORD V-8 in the sky, and the Panda Bear in real life and the bronze likeness dating back to 200 B. C. Last and through it all, the reaching out beyond the limits of my own campus and finding out above the SCA—its past, present, and future.

Mr. Kurtz was born in St. Petersburg, Russia, where he studied at the Conservatory under famous teachers. Later he studied at the Berlin academy.

THE COLLEGE OATH

"We will never bring disgrace to this, our College, by any act of cowardice or dishonesty. We will fight for the ideals and sacred things of the College. We will revere and obey the College laws and do our best to incite a like respect and reverence in others. We will transmit this College to those who come after us, greater, better, and more beautiful than it was transmitted to us."

THANKSGIVING PRAYER

Dear Father, my thanks to You I give
For a peaceful world in which to live,
For friends, not only to share my sorrow,
But help me plan for each tomorrow.

I thank You, Lord, for education,
For letting me live in a wonderful nation;
Thank You for shelter, food, and drink;
For sunsets, trees; for blue and pink.

Thank You, Father, for sleep and dreams,
For starry nights, for bright moon beams,
For silvery clouds in a sky of blue,
For all the blessings received from You.

—Marguerite Whaley.

THOUGHTS FOR THANKSGIVING

Tomorrow and Friday the College halls will not ring with the customary footsteps, chatter, and laughter, for the students will all be away for their Thanksgiving vacation.

Thoughts will all turn to turkeys, cranberries, mince meat pies, and other foods which are a Thanksgiving tradition. But thoughts should also turn to the original reason for a Thanksgiving Day.

This year the end of the war has given everyone something for which to be thankful. For many this will be the happiest Thanksgiving for four or more years.

For each student the two-day vacation is only one thing for which to give thanks. Let each one, as he thanks God for his blessings pray also that this peace may be a lasting one, that never again may there be another war such as the one from which the world is now emerging.

RESOLUTIONS

Before another issue of the Northwest Missourian comes out, a new term will have begun. When New Year's day comes along, everybody thinks about making resolutions. Why not make some resolutions on New Term's day?

You will buy new notebooks; you will have new textbooks; you may even have new teachers. Why not start a new program of work that will bring new and better results? Think it over!

NOTICE

New class schedules will be issued for the winter quarter, Dean J. W. Jones announces.

Students and faculty are urged to get these new schedules as soon as they are out—an announcement will be made when they are ready. They will be distributed before the end of the present quarter.

Who They Are—What They Do

S/Sgt. Ralph M. King

S/Sgt. Ralph M. King, a graduate of the College in 1943 with a major in industrial arts and minor in physical education, is now stationed at Chengtu, China.

Sgt. King enlisted in the army air corps in March, 1943, and was called to active duty ten days after graduation. After taking two months training for radio codeman at Scott Field, Illinois, he was transferred to Madison, Wisconsin, to finish radio training and to take advanced training in code. Sgt. King was one of four men out of twenty to pass the tests, and set the fastest record checked by time, that has been made for sending blinker signals.

After being processed for overseas duty, Sgt. King was sent to Bombay, India, where he was in charge of transportation of men to China. While there, he made two trips by air to Calcutta, India. He saw an ammunition battleship explode in the harbor and worked two days and nights moving bodies.

From Bombay he flew over the Hump to Kunming, China, then driving along to Oyak trail to Chengtu, where he is stationed now. The first B-29's to bomb Japan are stationed at Chengtu.

Sgt. King has been made station chief of the base, which is being evacuated. He hopes to be home by Christmas.

His wife, the former Miss Etta McMullin, a former student of the College, is living in St. Joseph and is employed as a retoucher at Strathmann Studio.

Fannie Hope

Miss Fannie Hope, an alumna of the College, started teaching at the College in 1911 and continued to do so until 1915. She was supervisor of the training school and also sponsor of the Y. W. C. A. During the summer, aside from her regular activities, she taught geography and social science.

Mr. H. K. Taylor was president of the College when Miss Hope started teaching and when she resigned, Mr. Ira Richardson was president.

Upon her resignation from the faculty of the College, Miss Hope taught at the Maryville high school for three years; then she became instructor of English and geography and has remained in those fields as of the present date.

Miss Hope received her B. S. degree at the College and took her post-graduate work at Chicago University.

Serenade to Mr. Hale:

The answers to some questions
I wish I knew
And could rattle off
As well as you.

If this test I pass
I'll holler, "Yippee!"
Even though I know
I'll not get an E.

But if I fail to pass
This here now test,
I want you to know
I did my best
And fought to the last.

One of the college students observes: "As I was walking down Main street about 4:30 p. m. one day, not paying much attention to anything or anybody, I was suddenly conscious of something bright red that crossed my vision." Then my curiosity got the better of me and I had to see what that bright thing was.

"Here is what I saw: a red sign saying 'See the 1946 Chevrolet.' This sign was on a bumper of a 1936 faded, blue, shattered-windowed, dented, fendered, beat-up and battered Chevrolet automobile.

"Good advertising and quite a contrast!"

Pipes Are His Hobby

Robert Jones, a freshman at the College, has a hobby of collecting pipes. He now has 87. He has two from Germany, a chalk pipe from Wales, and bone pipe from Ireland. Mr. Jones' grandfather gave him a water pipe and a few others to start his hobby. All of the pipes have been smoked except one of chalk.

University of Kansas Has Course Without Classroom

LAWRENCE, KAN.—(ACP)—A course without a classroom! This is a "must" on the schedule of any freshman enrolling the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences this year at the University of Kansas.

Western Civilization, the new "teacher-less" course, has been designed by the University for the development of students who understand American democracy, its European roots, and its present and future role in world peace.

Not only must these students know about the foundations of democracy, but also how to write about it and speak about it.

A six-hour reading course, Western Civilization, is made up of a group of readings from classic and modern writings. Professor Holden Gibson, course adviser, recommends that each student read "on his own" and develop independent opinions without meeting any teacher in the classroom. Students are provided with student proctors if they so desire.

No student is required to do the reading, but all must take a comprehensive examination on the material contained in the readings. Six hours of credit are allowed if the student passes the examination. If the examination isn't passed, it must be taken again the following semester.

Janet Drennan and Roberta Flinck spent the weekend of November 8-4 at Miss Drennan's home in Corning, Iowa. While there, they attended the homecoming game.

The Stroller

The Stroller walked into a classroom the other day and heard a teacher, in discussing color, mention that a purple sweater brought out the blond lights in the hair of one of the students. Evidently the teacher is unaware that blond lights are not always due to color in the sweater. The Stroller knew that girl back when.... Sh! Don't tell the teacher, but that same girl had to give that same hair a brown rinse to make her look natural when she went home for the week-end.

Clarence McConkey's bulletin board date request quickly brought results. Three names soon appeared on the notice, Ruth Wyatt, Louise Gorsuch, June Pollock. Four or five other girls rushed to get their names signed, but soon backed down and scratched out their names. "You're doing all right, Clarence!" says the Stroller.

To know, or not to know—that is the question. If Robert (alias Gib, Gid, Bob, or G. Robert) Jones does not even know his own name, how is the Stroller supposed to know?

The Stroller is beginning to believe that at least one long-winded freshman is enrolled in the College. Anyway, he writes sentences a whole page long.

Actually, the Stroller is almost afraid to go to bed at the dorm since Catherine Law has started her collection of wee, creepy things, like "Uncle Louie," the turtle. Her pet and those of Dixie Murray and Mary Frances Robinett may take to roaming—in fact, it is reported that they do.

One good has come out of having live turtles around, though, for their owners have taken to catching flies for them—the fall fly crop has decreased somewhat, and the Stroller is grateful for that.

You didn't recognize the Stroller last week, did you, with that two-in-one effect of her new hair bleach? She just wanted to be in fashion.

The Stroller believes in studying, all right, but he cannot match the time budget that Bobbie Finke turned in to the Freshman Orientation instructors. According to her schedule, Bobbie can go to bed at

Former Staff Member of Northwest Missourian Works on City Newspaper

From the Northwest Missourian staff to the St. Joseph News-Press staff in one week—that is the record of Miss Elizabeth Ann Davis. One week after completing work for her degree at the College, Miss Davis began her career at the News-Press as the state editor. In this position all state news except society and farm news came to her desk. This included death notices, stories about servicemen, clubs, and school events. As part of the state editor's work, she had charge of the Northwest Missouri page in the Sunday News-Press.

Five months later, in August, 1944, Miss Davis was transferred to her present position at the desk of the city editor. Her tasks here consist mainly of reading copy and writing headlines. "Copy reading may not sound exciting—the movies have exaggerated the glamor of reporting," Miss Davis says, "but I have enjoyed working on the desk. It is the hub of the office, and all the exciting happenings reach us there. I will admit that sometimes I become thoroughly disgusted with the job and would trade it for a calm bookkeeper's duty. Those moments come at 11:45, fifteen minutes before deadline when I must grind out half a dozen headlines immediately, and at 3 p. m. Saturday, when suddenly the entire staff decide to write Sunday copy, and the stories avalanche the city editor and me."

The former member of the Northwest Missourian staff gives a bit of warning to the present staff members. "Don't let anyone tell you," she says, "that writing headlines is easy. Some of them do come readily,

Miniature "Oil Field" Foretells Future

PITTSBURGH, PA.—Physicist H. G. Böset, of Gulf Oil Corporation's Research Laboratories, plans oil production on the "Electrolytic Model Oil Field" he invented. The device, which duplicates actual oil field operations on a laboratory scale, will substantially increase the world's usable oil resources. The "Model" can forecast results of various production methods in given oil fields up to 20 years in the future, assuring more scientific advance planning and a greater percentage of oil recovery. The young lady assistant holds a tray of miniature "oil wells".

Harvey Bush Brings His Daughter to See College

Harvey Bush, a student of the College in 1925, and his daughter, Miss Jean Ellen Bush, were recent campus visitors. They were at the College to arrange for Miss Bush to enroll in college here on December 4.

Miss Bush, a graduate of the Excelsior Springs high school with the class of 1944, has been a bookkeeper in a bank in Excelsior Springs since her graduation.

"Jean Ellen is the daughter of Jeanette Brock," said Mr. Bush as he introduced his daughter and referred to his wife, who is also a former student of the College. He spoke too, of his mother, Mrs. F. A. Bush, also a former student. Miss Bush, therefore, will be a third-generation student of the College.

Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Bush are now living in Sidney, Nebraska, according to the son. They have retired from active work.

The Harvey Bush family, who have been in Excelsior Springs since 1941, have been looking for a house in Maryville, as they wish to be with their daughter while she is in college. Thus far, they have been unable to find a house, Mr. Bush said.

Mr. Bush is a representative of the Moaman Feed company. He hopes to make Maryville his headquarters for serving Nodaway, Holt, and Atchison counties.

Alpha Sigma Alpha alumnae, actives, and pledges will attend a formal banquet, November 26, at the Maryville Country Club. This banquet will be in recognition of National Founders' Day, November 15, 1941.

Misses Mary Gillett, Mary Lee Wharton, and Little Lippincott of Stanberry spent the week-end of November 10-12 at home in Mound City.

Judy Harper spent the week-end of November 2-4 at her home in Kansas City, Missouri.

Orchestra Women Talk About Work

Seventeen feminine players have position with Philharmonic. Personal satisfaction seemed to be the chief incentive for their playing with the Kansas City Philharmonic Orchestra, to judge from the expression of the seventeen women members of the orchestra after its performance here last week. All were enthusiastic about the work.

Although now they have to make their homes in Kansas City, most of the women who play in the orchestra came from other towns all over the country. Some of them with husbands and babies spend many mornings at rehearsals only to go home and devote long hours to practice. Two of them said that their husbands were also in the orchestra.

"Music is our job and our recreation," said one.

"It's also hard work," added another.

Most of the women expressed themselves as pleased with their working conditions. However, they dislike the bus trips and the dressing rooms which are usually provided for them when they play outside of the city. They enjoy their work very much, and all agreed that they would not give it up for anything in the world.

The women play almost anything and everything in the way of instruments. Six of them play violins. The first trombone player is a woman. Who else but a beautiful woman could be a harpist? One lady has "invaded" the percussion section. And besides this, an observer can find two of them playing violas, two more of them with horns, three with cellos, and one with an English horn.

All of the women members of the orchestra possess college degrees, according to a spokesman for the group. They possess their own instruments, and each player must have performed at a summer audition before getting a place with this orchestra. Once in, a player must then hold the position, the women said in an interview. The average women are in their second season and others range from two months to four years with the orchestra.

The new officers for this year were elected at this meeting. Mr. William McCarthy has replaced Mr. E. W. Gray as president. Mrs. W. J. Montgomery is the new vice-president, and Mr. Cleo Gregg retains his office of secretary-treasurer.

Mr. Hartzell has already contracted for three of this season's soloists. Mrs. Dorothy Greenberg, soprano, will journey from Cincinnati, Ohio, for the Christmas performance of "The Messiah." Mr. Turner Tyson of Maryville will sing the bass solos. Frederick Sherman of Kansas City will be the tenor soloist.

The chorus was first organized last year under the direction of Mr. Hartzell. During the Christmas season an audience of over one thousand people heard the performance of Handel's "Messiah." The soloists came from the faculty of the University of Kansas at Lawrence. At Easter time the chorus made its second appearance, when it presented "The Seven Last Words of Christ" by Dubois. Miss Hilda Hamblin, alumna of the College, sang the soprano solo.

Misses Fairé Drewes and Thelma Overly spent the week-end of November 10-12 at home in Mound City.

The program began with songs led by Dorothy Lee White, a student of the College, Artie White, her sister, read the Scripture. Another College student, Herbert Hackman, gave a short talk.

After the program, business meeting was conducted. Two delegates were elected from each church to serve on the executive committee. One was to be of high school age, and the other of college age.

Helen Haller, a sophomore at the College, and Bob Tebow from Maryville high school, were elected to represent the Methodist church.

The Baptist Church selected Betty Lou McPherson, a senior at the College, and Mary Ruth Tebow, for the high school.

For their representatives, the Christian Church chose Marvin Gee to represent the high school, and Don Lyle as a College delegate.

Reverend L. R. Mahard is to represent the Presbyterian Church for the time being.

Jim Spainhower from Maryville high school is to serve on the executive committee as delegate at large.

After the rally an executive committee meeting was held. Jim Spainhower was elected temporary chairman. Plans were made for the next meeting.

Czech Statesman Talks at College

Speaker Sees Europe Faced With Annihilation of Her Civilization.

"The reason for the present European crisis is that in the past 150 to 200 years Europe has been developing on outside resources instead of her own," Thus spoke Dr. Stefan Osusky, Czechoslovakian diplomat and student of international affairs, in assembly, Wednesday morning, November 7.

The speaker drew parallels between what happened to the civilization of ancient Greece and what is happening—has happened—in Europe. Greece, he pointed out, with few resources of her own had developed rich and powerful colonies and had thus become great. Her civilization developed correspondingly until one day she woke up to the fact that her colonies had become so rich and powerful themselves that her glory was waning. The very source of her wealth and power brought about her downfall; her civilization halted.

Europe today finds herself in the same situation as that of Greece. "The tragedy is not only Hitler and Nazism," the speaker said, "but the fact that Europe has been developing on resources not her own."

"I have no good word for Hitler, no good word for Nazism," Dr. Osusky continued, "but Hitler saw what was happening and tried to stop the clock of history so that he could direct Europe into economic and political preponderance."

Economic Leadership Is Gone.

That preponderance, the speaker asserted, is gone never to rise again. If rejuvenation is to come to Europe, it must come in some other line, he thinks.

Rejuvenation of European civilization is possible, Dr. Osusky believes, "because it is a superior civilization; it has developed in the past because it is all-embracing, excluding no peoples." That is what Hitler failed to see, the lecturer declared. "When nationalism is so blind that it commits acts against individual freedom, that nationalism is condemned to die."

Russia, the speaker seemed to think, presents a different picture from that of Greece; and Stalin has a different policy from that followed by Hitler. The Russian leader, Dr. Osusky said, has expressed a policy in which he says that peoples with a common language and a common culture have a right to their own nation and their own language, even the right to withdraw from the Soviet union if they choose. That principle, he said, was provided for in the constitution of 1936.

He Leaves Question Unanswered.

That one listening to the speech could not define exactly the position the speaker was taking with regard to Russia was one of many comments heard after assembly. Does he think that Russia is the one hope? Is Europe to become the United States of Russia—or of Europe with Russia as the great power? He left many questions unanswered.

The world is faced with the crisis in Europe, the speaker declared again and again. He seemed to think that people are not recognizing the fact.

He did not clearly tell his audiences just what part the United States was to play in the rejuvenation of Europe. He did say that the Renaissance was a rejuvenation which did not reach its limits in Europe because many who caught the vision left Europe and came to America. He urged his listeners to keep informed on what was happening in Europe and to recognize that a crisis is at hand. He did say that he believes Europe has the ability to pull herself out of the present crisis, saying that the elements of clas-

Purple Peppers Present Special Drill at Game

The Purple Peppers, Horace Mann pep association, performed a special drill at the last home game of the season when the Cubs defeated Graham high school. Drill leader, Dorothy Smith, put the sixteen girls through their paces. Mrs. Vincent Scott of the Horace Mann faculty sponsors the group.

The drill squad is composed of girls who pass certain requirements and have been active in the Purple Peppers at least one year. The girls who took part in the drill were Margaret Fisher, Bernice Huckleberry, Joan Schneider, Lucile Cockayne, Esta Jean Birkenholz, Joanne Wright, Beverly Ulmer, Helen Stanton, Shirley Goforth, Fay Adams, Lola Weathermon, Mary Kiser, Marilyn Gard, Letha Marie Shull, Marjorie Young, and Bettie Kempf.

The Purple Peppers were organized three years ago, but this is the first active season for the drill squad.

Jungle Gym Is Added to Playground for Children

A jungle gym, an apparatus especially built and designed for young children to develop arm, trunk, and leg muscles, was completed about November 1, on the playground behind the Horace Mann building.

The construction of horizontal and vertical steel bars covers a five by seven foot space. The bars are very close together to allow children to catch them easily to keep from falling. Even small children can play safely on them."

The jungle gym is the beginning of a plan for a large playground project, according to Miss Chloe Arnold, of the kindergarten and primary department.

James Hill, a freshman of the College, went to Tarkio Friday evening, November 9, to attend a play, "Blithe Spirit," given by the Alpha Psi Omega.

James Allen spent the week-end of November 10-11 with his parents at Craig.

College Newspaper Backs Loan Drive

"Collegian" of Los Angeles Gives Top Publicity to Bond Program.

Written in the editorial policy of the Los Angeles Collegian, official publication of Los Angeles City College, is the aim to serve student and community enterprise to a full and satisfactory extent.

And when the U. S. Treasury department awarded the Collegian the Associated Collegiate Press War Bond for the best coverage of the Sixth War Loan through a campus publication, it was the efforts of the students concentrated on this policy that spurred the victory.

The inaugural of Victory Loan Drives found the Collegian ready to give top publicity to all school activities connected with the bond program. Dances, rallies, contests, and feature stories were given top position on page one. A special "Bond Issue" complete with stories of Victory Loan activities of every club, organization and group on campus was publicized once each semester. This issue, which came out on the publication day nearest the beginning of a drive, was stuffed with bond applications in addition to complete activity coverage.

"Dance to the Hum of a P-61" was a successful slogan given publicity in connection with a Victory Bond Rally. This event was the beginning of a war loan drive and the stated objective was a Northrop P-61. Through effective publication of this tricky slogan, curiosity as well as interest was aroused and the dance resulted in a successful start for the drive.

Top stories and pictures effectively publicized the Pauline Betz-Mary Arnold tennis match which was held on campus as a bond show and which resulted in one of the largest sales of bonds of any similar affair. Human interest and personal interviews with Miss Betz and Miss Arnold, former City College students, with top stories and action photos, resulted in bringing an unusually large crowd, spurring sales.

The Collegian frequently printed lists of top bond salesmen and the amounts in bold face. Often lists of every student on campus who had sold bonds were published. When inter-club contests were held, each club and total sales amounts were printed with a feature lead explaining the leaders' success.

One of the leading top stories was about the pictures and names of students who sold at least $1,000 worth of bonds were posted on the walls in the Student Union. A cardboard airplane for each $1,000 was hung under the picture and some students had as many as 40 planes.

Coverage of campaigns such as entertainment by a special show for $1,000 bond sellers, programs put on by the student executive council in a downtown park and department store, publicity of the posting of names and pictures of $1,000 sellers, and many other smaller stories of the activities carried on by various campus organizations helped to make a complete account.

Such activities on the school paper seemed a small and insignificant part to be playing in the great drama of war. Writing of others' success and sales ideas seemed a quiet, reserved way to spend fighting the war. But when Associated Collegiate Press War Bond Treasury department citation were received, a warm feeling of realization that they, too, had really done a war job commendable by government was readily felt by the staff.

Shirley Elliott of Edgerton, who is a sophomore this year, has discontinued her school work for this quarter because of poor health. However, she plans to return for the winter quarter if her health permits her to do so.

Panel Discusses Aid for Education

College Observes Education Week With Program on Federal Aid.

A panel of eight speakers discussing in Assembly, Wednesday morning, the various angles of federal aid in education, tracing the history of the first ideals along that line of thinking and what has been done up to the present time.

The program was planned by members of the Future Teachers of America, an organization on the campus sponsored by Dr. Ruth Lane. Miss Mary Lou Rusk conducted the devotions before the program. Mr. Homer Phillips explained that the program was a part of the observance of Education Week.

The first speaker, Annie Lee Logan, told of early land grants by the government providing for colleges, seminaries and academies, but providing for no control of public education. Among other things, she cited the Smith-Hughes act of 1917 through which initiated vocational education could be initiated by the state, to be matched with money from the federal government.

Don Barber then pointed out that President Franklin D. Roosevelt served on a commission during the Hoover administration, which commission recommended federal aid to education and department of education. The commission asked repeal of all vocational laws, the duties to go to the department. There was a minority report, which may have prevented the work from being carried out to the fullest extent. Mr. Barber added that in 1938 the Roosevelt administration appointed a similar commission, which recommended an office of education instead of a department in the President's cabinet. All these main proposals failed because while the states want federal aid, they do not want too strong a centralization.

Mr. Udelowitch first became interested in playing the timpano-kettle-drum, after seeing a timpano player when he was a boy. He formerly played with the National Orchestra in New York City, where he was discovered by Mr. Efrem Kurtz, conductor of the Kansas City Philharmonic Orchestra. He had an audition for Mr. Kurtz and was asked to join the Kansas City group. The kettle drummer played his most important part in the "Dance of the Sabers" in the concert at the College.

Efrem Kurtz, Maestro

One might expect a musician of Mr. Efrem Kurtz's renown to be annoyed at being approached by a mere college freshman, but he greeted the Northwest Missourian reporter warmly.

The maestro, as many of his associates refer to him, is very tall, and his height is accentuated by rather long features. His hands, which are expressive as a true musician's can be, are used freely in gesture as he talks. He speaks with a slight accent, explained by the fact that he is a Russian by birth.

In some manner he turned all talk of himself to conversation concerning music. When asked if there were any orchestra he preferred to conduct, he replied, "No. It is not what you play, but how you play it," he explained. "I would as soon play 'Oklahoma!' or 'Carousel!' as Tchaikovsky."

He discounted the belief that not all people can appreciate classical music by stating that the musical interpretation and the playing of the music made for liking or disliking of particular pieces.

Mr. Kurtz remarked that he played the piano and violin, and then added with a minimizing gesture, "But I have not played for many years."

As conductor of various orchestras, he has traveled over all the world and in most of the world's great cities. He came to America in 1933 with the Russian ballet and has been here since.

He seems to have caught the spirit of Americanism, though, for he asserted happily, "America is the best country of all the world!"
